

SECULARISM

Often times this word is used in religious circles and said to be that world outside of the church. But, this is not true!

Secularism is a philosophical term that means: there is no eternal dimension, this world is all that there is, there is no Heaven or Hell, and if there is a Heaven, we can't possibly know anything about it, but Hell could not exist.

There are all kinds of philosophical schools competing for domination in our Western civilization; and I think the one that's showing the strong arm of the flesh is secularism.

History some scholars tell us shows that every culture has to have something that unifies it, some kind of viewpoint that brings it together. That unifying concept may be religious, or it may be a philosophical one, but there is some world view that masses hold to.

Western civilization today is up for grabs some say, and they may be correct. As more and more people turn away from the Judeo-Christian faith, we see them turning to a world view known as secularism; a view that will bring great sorrow upon any people or nation.
